

Medway Campus

In its time it was at the forefront of shipbuilding, industry and architecture. And now it's home to our Medway Campus. We follow the river, past Rochester, the home of Dickens, with its impressive cathedral and imposing castle. On to the historic naval dockyard at Chatham.

The university is housed in the spectacular former naval offices. Once inside you're never too far from its maritime past.

Our large scale, continual investment shows that the university is also forward thinking. Take the Pilkington Building which is a 21st century student centre and teaching space, complete with relaxed cafe and inspiring lecture theatres. And, what was once the Drill Hall is now the longest library in Europe. Complete with 2.7 miles of shelving and over 150,000 books, all sitting alongside the latest technology.

Our Schools cover: Pharmacy, Health & Social Care, Science, Engineering and The Natural Resources Institute. All with strong links to industry, working with international companies and undertaking many research projects including: saving lives with fire safety software, working towards a greener economy and designing components for NASA.

Back on campus, we have the hub of all student life – the student's union. Whether its socialising, entertainment, sports or one of the many societies, you're never too far from someone who shares your interests. There's plenty to do off campus too. The City of Rochester, with its cobbled streets, quaint and quirky shops, all manner of events, carnivals and festivals, and the Norman cathedral, where you'll graduate.

Europe is just a short hop across the English Channel. Or take time out closer to home, at the nearby coast where you'll find the beaches of Broadstairs and Ramsgate. Or explore the historic city of Canterbury and the rolling hills of Kent – the garden of England.

It's the best of both worlds. Hundreds of miles of unspoilt countryside and the big, bright lights of London are all within easy reach.

Students

"The quality and mix of resources is really great."

"I have never met so many people from so many different countries, in one single place – it's so diverse."

"I gained real world experience, which will be helpful when I start work."

"The coast is so close by and so is London, there's always plenty to do."

"The programme I'm on has received international recognition."

"The place was clean and modern. It was the best out of the universities I visited."
